PORTS OF CALL

Papeete, Tahiti, French Polynesia

The capital of French Polynesia, Papeete offers an ideal introduction to Tahiti's inspiring culture and timeless natural beauty, with its volcanic peaks, black-sand beaches, shimmering waterfalls and fish-filled reefs.

Moorea, French Polynesia

Considered the most beautiful island in the world by Frommer's, the wonders of Moorea may be beyond description, but they are not beyond your reach. Shaped like a heart and a favorite with honeymooners, Moorea's dramatic landscape boasts verdant mountains, sparkling waterfalls and white-sand beaches.

Raroia, French Polynesia

In 1947, Thor Heyerdahl, a legendary Norwegian adventurer and anthropologist, drifted across the Pacific aboard the balsa raft Kon-Tiki. His famous 101-day journey from Peru ended on this beautiful atoll of the Tuamotus chain.

Fakarava, French Polynesia

A UNESCO Biosphere Reserve for the preservation of rare species, Fakarava is home to wonders of both land and sea. This atoll of the Tuamotu group northeast of Tahiti is known for its deep and unique lagoon, the second largest in French Polynesia. With its impressive variety of marine life, Fakarava offers nearly unrivaled snorkeling and diving as well as some interesting historical sites and gorgeous beaches.

Rangiroa, French Polynesia

Stunningly beautiful, this atoll is a natural aquarium. Its lagoon is one of the world's largest—larger, in fact, than the island of Tahiti—and is filled with vibrant marine life. Dolphins frequent navigable passes into the interior lagoon and local pearl farms produce fantastic gems.

Bora Bora, French Polynesia

With coconut palms shading sandy beaches and volcanic peaks overlooking crystal-clear waters, it's no wonder Bora Bora is regarded as the world's most romantic island. Featuring abundant, fascinating marine life in its sparkling turquoise waters and charming thatch-roofed bungalows perched above the surface, Bora Bora is nothing less than captivating.

Raiatea, French Polynesia

An important archaeological site, the "Sacred Island" is dotted with vanilla plantations and rich with history and mythology. Less traveled than its neighboring islands of Bora Bora and Tahiti, Raiatea is picturesque and mountainous—authentic French Polynesia.

Huahine, French Polynesia

Relaxed and serene, Huahine is made up of two islands surrounded by a coral reef and connected by a bridge. Along a coastal road, another bridge has been made famous by the three- to six-foot eels that live beneath it, deemed sacred by local legend.
