

Integrated Baccalaureate and Master's Degree in History

The Department of History at Western Illinois University offers a program enabling students to earn a Bachelor of Arts degree and a Master of Arts degree in History in five years—as opposed to the six normally required for the two degrees. The program maintains the integrity of these degrees by allowing students to take nine semester hours of coursework that can apply to requirements for both degrees. The program is specifically designed for outstanding students either going on to seek a doctoral degree in History or eager to start a profession that values data interpretation and narrative writing expertise. The program focuses on Illinois, American, and world history.

Admission Requirements

Undergraduate students may apply for admission to the Integrated Degree Program in History at Western Illinois University after completing 60 semester hours of undergraduate coursework, of which a minimum of 30 semester hours must be earned at WIU. A student must be a history major and have a cumulative GPA of at least 3.25, as well as a GPA of 3.25 in history courses required by the major. Both GPAs are indicative of the academic excellence required to earn the Integrated Degree in History. The Graduate Record Examination (GRE) is not required as part of an application for admission.

Degree Requirements

Students in the Integrated Degree Program must fulfill current requirements for the Bachelor of Arts degree in History (History option, the Pre-Law option or the History-Teacher Education option), as well as current graduate requirements for the Master of Arts degree in History (the thesis plan, the applied project plan or the coursework plan). Given the additional semester hours required for History-Teacher Education, the program cannot guarantee students pursuing this option will complete it in five years.

To enable students to earn both degrees within five years, they may take nine semester hours (usually three “bridge” courses) at the 400(B)-level, by which students normally earn either undergraduate or graduate credit. Students in the Integrated Degree Program in History would take 400 (B) courses for graduate credit, although these would help fulfill both undergraduate and graduate requirements.

Advantages of a BA/MA Integrated Degree in History

There are several reasons why an accomplished History major would want to enter the Integrated Degree Program in History, as opposed to earning both degrees separately. First, the accelerated pace by which a student earns both history degrees suits those eager either to start a career in numerous fields, including public history, teaching, public service, non-profits and think tanks, or to pursue a Ph.D. in History. The completion of the program will enable a student to seek such opportunities earlier than those earning these degrees separately. Second, the Integrated Degree Program is more affordable for most students, especially given how the program maintains an undergraduate tuition plan for an additional academic year. Students benefit educationally through having a more integrated curriculum; the courses they take as undergraduates mesh well with those taken at the graduate level, enabling them to closely relate their undergraduate and graduate coursework.

Scholarships, Honors, and Awards

- An additional advantage for students in the Integrated Degree Program is that depending upon their status of matriculation, they may be eligible for either undergraduate or graduate scholarships, honors and awards.
- A full list of History undergraduate and graduate scholarships, honors and awards is available online at wiu.edu/cas/academics/scholarships/History.php.
- In addition to the scholarships, honors and awards shown online, upon fulfilling their baccalaureate requirements students in the Integrated Degree Program become eligible for a Teaching Support Assistantship. These

Program Location:
Macomb

Contact Information

Questions about the program:

Department of History
Professor Tim Roberts,
graduate director
(309) 298-1053
TM-Roberts@wiu.edu
wiu.edu/cas/history/graduate.php

General admission questions:

School of Graduate Studies
(309) 298-1806 or (877) WIU GRAD
Grad-Office@wiu.edu
wiu.edu/grad

 facebook.com/dr.timroberts

Western Illinois University is an Affirmative Action and Equal Opportunity employer with a strong commitment to diversity. In that spirit, we are particularly interested in receiving applications from a broad spectrum of people, including, but not limited to, minorities, women and individuals with disabilities. WIU has a non-discrimination policy that includes sex, race, color, sexual orientation, gender identity and gender expression, religion, age, marital status, national origin, disability and veteran status.

Western Illinois University

positions are awarded to full-time graduate students through a competitive application process. Teaching Support Assistants receive a tuition waiver and a stipend in exchange for up to 20 hours of work per week.

- Upon fulfilling their baccalaureate requirements, students in the Integrated Degree Program may also apply to the Graduate Committee for awards from the Professor Emeritus Fund, which helps pay expenses incurred while conducting historical research for coursework or a thesis. They may also apply for Professor Emeritus Awards to help pay travel expenses for presenting research papers at academic conferences.

Faculty Expertise

All department faculty members possess doctoral degrees in History, earned from distinguished American and foreign universities. Faculty have teaching and research expertise in their geographic and thematic areas of specialization and are nationally and internationally recognized for their scholarly research and publications. Faculty areas of geographical expertise include the United States, the Ancient Mediterranean, Germany, France, the Atlantic World, South Africa, and East Asia. Particular areas of research expertise are, in American history, the Civil War era's conflict of democracy and slavery; organized labor and anarchism; Illinois history; Western environmental history; the presidency, political parties and U.S. diplomacy during the Cold War; and women in World War I. Areas of research expertise in modern European history include religious culture and the public sphere in France during the Revolution and women in nineteenth- and twentieth-century Germany. Our ancient European research focus is in Roman military history during the late republic and early empire, and in Greek numismatics. Areas of research expertise in Asia include women's education and public health in Japan and the Philippines, and the social history of disease in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Our faculty also study transnational and comparative history, including the ancient Mediterranean world; Atlantic history in the age of revolutions; workers and civil rights in the United States and South Africa; and U.S. imperialism in the Philippines.

Distinctive Features

- The WIU Department of History offers undergraduate and graduate courses at the University's Macomb campus and is a recognized regional leader in quality and value.
- Students in the Integrated Degree Program have ample opportunity to work closely with the faculty members and develop strong, mentored relationships.
- Students in the Integrated Degree Program are encouraged to present their research at regional academic conferences such as the Missouri Valley Conference, the WIU Annual Graduate Research Conference, the Illinois History Symposium and Phi Alpha Theta regional conferences.
- Students in the Integrated Degree Program can apply for internships at regional historical sites and institutions, including the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Museum and Library in Springfield, IL, the Rock Island Arsenal, the Putnam Museum in Davenport, IA, the Des Moines County Historical Society in Burlington, IA, the Western Illinois Museum in Macomb and other institutions.
- Western Illinois University is home to the Omicron Omicron chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, the American honor society of history. The society includes both undergraduate and graduate students in History. Each year it sponsors a number of activities for its members and the community at large. It also sponsors an online journal of student research, the Western Illinois Historical Review.

- The history department sponsors the organization, Associated Students of History (ASH), which is open to both undergraduates and graduates. ASH hosts history-oriented social events, including guest speakers, film screenings, trivia contests, and field trips to local historic sites.
- Students in the Integrated Degree Program may have the opportunity to study history on site through the history department's travel-study abroad courses. Past travel has included trips to Greece, Italy, Germany, Northern Ireland, England and Turkey.
- Many graduate classes are available via distance learning, either online or through Zoom video conferencing.

