Development news

It was with great pleasure, at Barb Grindstaff’s retirement party, that we were able to announce the establishment of a Curriculum Library Fund in her honor. When approached, Dr. Angela Ferree, retired curriculum and instruction professor who specialized in literature and literacy, gladly stepped up to the plate with a $2,000 pledge to kick-start the fund. Dean Michael Lorenzen and his wife, Julie, affirmed their faith in the curriculum library by matching Dr. Ferree’s pledge 1:1. With a few smaller donations coming in from other library staff, we are quickly approaching the required $5,000 to fully establish the fund. The fund is to be used for the purchase of books, textbooks, online subscriptions and licenses, and other teaching materials, as well as physical updates and equipment needs of the Curriculum Library. It was a memorable experience to be able to honor Barb by fulfilling one of her desires for the library she served so diligently.

In 2007 a fund was started for the Physical Sciences Library in honor of retired physics professor, Dr. Yan Lwin. This was to be an endowed fund, which requires a full $25,000. An initial mailing done in 2007 did not procure the full amount. Since that time, those funds have accrued and a few donations have come in each year. Never the less, the fund has still not reached the required amount. Recently, a second mailer was sent to all physics graduates during Dr. Lwin’s tenure. In addition, Dr. Lwin plans to make a pledge toward the effort as well. We have full faith that we will have the Dr. Lwin Physical Sciences Library Endowment fully funded very soon with these efforts.

On Thursday, June 11th, a heartfelt tribute was paid to Jack and Joyce Wiley, of the organization Quad Citians Affirming Diversity (QCAD), as we welcomed their large donation of a quality LGBTQA collection. Over 1,400 pieces were received. In his words at the reception, Dean Lorenzen stated that in all his years working for a variety of academic libraries, this collection ranked in his top five of donations he has worked with. The Wiley’s started QCAD over 20 years ago in the Quad Cities as they recognized the struggles their son faced when he came out during his youth. Since then, they and their Board members, have provided a safe haven for gay and adult youth, as well as serving as a resource and advocacy center. As the Wileys are retiring and changing course with the organization, they worked with Matthew Toland, a WIU Alumni Council member, and QCAD board member, to find a safe place for their collection. They were thrilled that by entrusting the collection to us, the items would be accessible to all through consortiums and the interlibrary loan process. What they, and others, built in the Quad Cities, can now benefit a much wider audience. A portion of the collection will remain at the QC library, but the largest portion will be held at Malpass. The books are not yet on the stacks but they should be by this fall. We will let you know as soon as that process is complete. It is our hope, that someday, we will be able to endow this collection so as to maintain and continue to add to it.

For now, spread the word on the donation! It is one more way our University Libraries is serving all!

Thanks to a donation from retired Associate Dean, Felix Chu, and Nancy Chu, retired professor from Curriculum and Instruction, University Libraries was able to purchased materials for the new Chu Multicultural collection. Items in the collection focus on social issues and the immigrant experience. For the complete news release go to the following link:

Digitization news

Through the use of foundation funds Digitization was able to get a new Zeutschel 1200 planetary scanner. This scanner can produce materials in color, grayscale and black & white. The scanner’s software automates functions such as: cropping, masking, and multiple file format creation. The book cradle and the scanner’s platform enable scanning of delicate materials without harming them. Extremely high processing speeds (1 sec per scan) and custom cradles help create exact images every time. This overhead tabletop scanner will be used for scanning books, newspapers, and large-format documents including: certificates, drawings, maps, posters, and ledgers.

Staff Happenings

- Jeff Hancks leaves in August for a year-long sabbatical in Denmark. While in Denmark he will be teaching American politics at Rødding Folk School in southern Denmark. Folk schools are a unique Scandinavian invention, and Rødding is the world's very first one. Jeff will also continue his research on the folk school movement in Scandinavia and the United States and begin work on a book about Danish immigration to Illinois. The entire Hancks flock is traveling with Jeff, and he looks forward to introducing Denmark and the Danes to them while reconnecting with many old friends and enjoying a Carlsberg or two.

- Jeff Hancks was one of five WIU faculty members initiated into the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi at a banquet on April 19. Phi Kappa Phi describes itself as "the nation's oldest, largest, and most selective honor society for all academic disciplines."

- Hunter Dunlap & Roderick Sharpe presented "Digital Archiving of Concert Performances: An Open Source Solution" at the 49th Annual Association for Recorded Sound Collections National Conference in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania on May 29. The presentation described the rationale, development, and implementation of the project to develop an open-source system for digitally archiving School of Music recitals, developed in-house at Western Illinois University and implemented in Fall 2013. To a crowd of over fifty participants they discussed the factors that led to the instigation of the project, the cooperation between the various constituencies to which it applies, the financial and technical issues, copyright and licensing implications, and the decision to implement a go-it-alone rather than off-the-shelf option such as Indiana University’s Variations. They described the development, and on-going processes (work-flow) of archiving up to 100 recitals per semester—recording processing, cataloging, and accessing them—as well as the retrospective conversion of analog recordings, dating back to the 1980s. They discussed in detail the technical specifications and equipment involved in the set-up, including integration into the university’s existing online library catalog. The results of implementing the system and its functionality during the eighteen months of operation was reviewed, together with an analysis of issues and responses from users, and implications for future development.

Cookies for Final exams week

The Malpass Library, again this past May, provided cookies to the students studying for final exams on Sunday, May 10, and Monday, May 11. Students were very appreciative of this break from their studies.
