The Dorothy and Maughan McMurdie Scholarship

Maughan McMurdie, an operatic baritone and bass, taught at Western Illinois and performed throughout the region from 1969 until his retirement in 1992. He was the musical director for Western's Summer Music Theatre from its onset until 1991; occasionally playing leading roles, including Emile de Becque in "South Pacific" (1973) and Hadj the Beggar in "Kismet" (1974). McMurdie also sang in opera productions, including performances with the Peoria Civic Opera Company.

McMurdie is also well-known as the composer and musical director of the long-running outdoor musical "City of Joseph," which portrayed the history of the early Mormon Church in Nauvoo, located 50 miles west of Macomb along the Mississippi River.

The scholarship was started in 2004 by WIU alumni Don and Kay Norton to honor and acknowledge the many years of service Maughan McMurdie gave to musical theatre in Macomb.
